

We tend to think that our children need a summer packed with activities. What many of them actually need is some down time, family time and relaxation - and maybe even a little bit of boredom.